LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Pamplin, Va., May 7

Editor, The Times-Virginian:

I was impressed with the truth of your fitting, and most timely message about Worrier's, published April 27, under the title, Are You a Worrier? As you endeavored to acquaint us with a serene philosophy of life, and a better, and more positive way of living, based upon knowledge, and faith, emphasizing the importance of being good forgetters, blocking out unpleasant memories; also pointing out the first, and greatest, necessity, for obtaining these values and goals, by revealing to us the role which time must play in our lives. How time can heal, soften, and eventually erase the most melancholy turn of events, as a healing balm, it will calm our emotions, and improve our day by day performances.

I am in complete accord with you in all this—and, that as you say— "Life today is a great strain, because of the fight for the happy dollar and the pace today, is one which has created tremendous mental, and psychological problems, as well as nervous disorders, frustration and disillusionment in many cases."

I believe that worry, and hurry, is our worst enemy. Worry has never solved anything. Modern man is becoming increasingly anxious. He is filled with apprehension. If we allow worry, and fear, to become an obsession, it is then, we become out of balance. We lose the center of our goal, we lose sight of what life was intended for. Amid the turmoil, hurry and excitement of our busy world, we need to learn the lesson of patient waiting upon God, who is never in haste. We need the presence of something surpassing the common life, A successful life, is a well balanced life, and includes thought, action rest, and recreation. We need to heed your advice for Worrier's and fretters, "Relax a bit, and outlive many of life's vexations, and irritations." The Master has a word for the worrier's, too. He bids us to be glad, ness and gloom, at the foot of the Cross, and make our joy complete by creative sharing. Take comfort in these words, "Ye shall find rest." Matt. 11:28-30.

Mrs. Robert Fore.

HIGHWAY DEPT. PLANS INFORATIVE VISITS

A bus tour originating in Culpeper, tentatively set for May 18, will take in the huge construction project underway on the 22-mile Capital Beltway near Washington. The Beltway has 14 interchanges, some of them the largest in the nation's 41000 mile interstate high way system, and 64 grade separation, interchange, railroad and stream crossing bridges, exclusive of the Potomac River crossing at Jones Point and Cabin John. The tour host will be District Engineer C. W. Kestner.

Total cost of the Beltway construction, incuding the right of way, is estimated at $45 million.

A Lynchburg District tour, conducted by District Engineer J. H. Phillips, will be held May 23 and will take in approximately 226 miles of highways.

Salem District tour, led by District Engineer C. F. Kallam May 16 will feature travel on new sections of recently completed Interstate 81 and construction on the same superhighway near Roanoke and Botetourt County.

The Tidewater area highway program will be inspected as part of the Suffolk District tour May 16. District Engineer C. P. Johnston will concentrate on completed sections of interstate highway and visit primary and secondary projects in and around Emporia, Petersburg, Williamsburg and Newport News areas.

Two tours are planned May 22 and 23 in the big northwest Va., Staunton District under the direction of District Engineer, R. C. Ambler.

Several of the highway districts will also conduct local tours of the residency office areas for newsmen and members of the county boards of supervisors prior to and during Highway Week.

Harris said the tours are aimed at informing the newsmen as to the improvements made to the highways and to acquaint them with some of the facilities.

"We feel sure that by informing them of our activities the people of this state can have a better understanding of our needs and problems," the commissioner said.
